

Introduction to Workplace Infection Control

St John e-learning

St John

“ Millions of Australians are away from the office due to illness.

Reduce infection in the workplace and as a result, improve attendance and maintain work continuity with this easy-to-use, online format demonstrating the importance of infection control. It is suitable to be included in all workplace induction programs. ”

In addition to practical 'hands on'* First Aid training, St John Ambulance Australia provides online courses via our e-learning platform making basic First Aid more accessible to everyone.

The St John Introduction to Workplace Infection Control online course will provide participants with basic knowledge and understanding of the importance of good hygiene practices to assist with the reduction of the spread of infection in the workplace. This program is designed to assist in times of accelerated illness to promote general health and wellbeing as well as providing basic infection control guidelines.

This course is ideal for educating staff about the importance of infection control to maintain a healthy working environment. To try a free demonstration of a St John online course, go to www.stjohn.org.au/ifa
